Researching the Prototype

Dave Leider will be giving this month's clinic, researching the prototype. Have you noticed how some layouts look more realistic than others? How some cars just look "better?" Dave will show you how doing a little research can help you add the details to bring your layout up a few notches.

Run For Office!

Well, January's over and April seems right around the corner, And in between the dreaded Tax Day and RailFun '06 is our Annual business meeting and elections during the April 23 meeting. The offices up for election this year are Superintendent and Chief Clerk. Think you've got what it takes to step into these shoes? Start by contacting our Programs Trainmaster, David Leider (sooauthor@netzero.net or call him at 847-253-7484). He can put you on the ballot. Send a

FVD Equipment on Display

*Jim Osborn
FVD Public Relations*

Check out the display case on the Arlington Heights Library 2nd floor and Rolling Meadows Library main floor during the month of February. The displays feature several FVD members' models as well as information about the hobby. The displays are part of our promotional efforts for the annual High Wheeler '06 train show on March 4 & 5 at Harper College. Thanks to Joel Lebovitz, Leif Hansen, Kurt Youngmann, Rick Saviano and Harry Sorenson for adding their equipment to some of mine for an effective presentation of all the normal scales from Z through G.

short Bio, we'll put it in the April Semaphore. Before you know it, you may be a part of the group that sends the Fox Valley Division down the right track next year.

This Month's Contest

The February contest is structures. So yank that bridge off your layout (hopefully you don't run your trains unattended while you're at the meeting) and bring it, along with your depots, high rises and grain elevators to our meeting. I'll have pictures of the winning entries in the March Semaphore.

Last Month's Contest

The January contest was passenger cars. No one brought in a Zepher (maybe because it's spelled Zephyr), but participation was very good. Frank Cole garnered first place with his modified Branchline 8-1-2 Pullman Sleeper kit:

Rick Saviano came in second:

And Dave Leider rounded out the cash winners in the contest:

Hints, Tips, and Innovations

Share your expertise with others

Rick Saviano- Publications / Membership Trainmaster

Following up on last month's article on photography, I promised I'd touch on digital photography and scale this month. There are two tricks to using digital photography: 1) Knowing the output of the digital camera (it is usually 5x7) 2) Knowing the equivalent focal length at a particular zoom (I won't go into the boring details of focal length and the size of the CCD in a digital camera. It winds up as inconsequential to this discussion.). The best thing to do is to experiment and determine the distance from the camera and the resultant printed image. If your camera records the focal length, mark that down, too. If it doesn't, your best bet is to record the results with the lens zoomed in all the way and zoomed out all the way. Of course, if you're dealing with a digital image, you have two advantages: 1) You can rescale the image. 2) You can print on decal material. This last advantage is tremendous, especially if you like wall signs: you can shoot a wall sign and "slide" it onto a blank wall, maintaining the faded painted wall signs and the original brick detail.

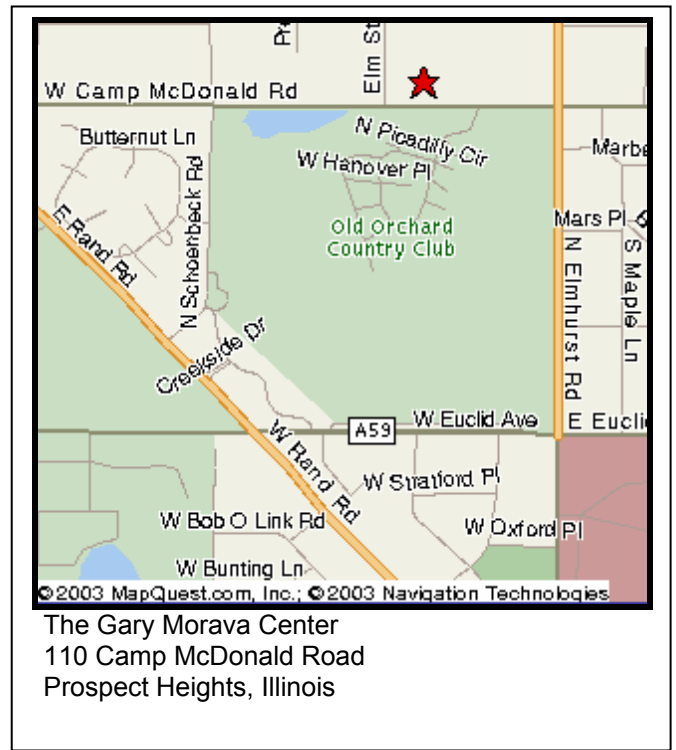

I caught a lot of grief when I wrote, "Don't kid yourself, there is no scale for G." What I meant was that there was no single scale for G gauge. More on that next month.
